Parking Protocol

We are again publishing our ideas for best practice guidelines for car parking.

- If you live near church and are in good health, consider walking instead of.
- If you have to drive, consider offering to car share, to reduce pressure on parking space.
- Fill up the car park from the far fence end, so spaces are not blocked.
- Park so that no spaces are blocked off.
- Make two rows in the area between the marked spaces, once they are full.
- Keep the access route from the road to the church door clear, for emergency vehicle access.
- Respect the property of our neighbours, do not park across their driveways or walk over their gardens.
- Leave the spaces near the front door till last, as they may be needed for the less able.
- Remember, if you are staying on after a service, to move your car if it is blocking others,
- If parking in nearby roads, do so in a way that respects our neighbours.

These are guidelines rather than rules as, for instance, vehicle size may influence where it is practical to park. They are offered for you to consider each time you come to Sacred Heart in a car.

14 February – Feast of Saints Cyril and Methodius

In 862, missionary brothers Cyril and Methodius were sent by the Byzantine emperor, at the behest of a Moravian prince, to explain to the Moravians the truths of the Christian religion in their native tongue. In 869, upon witnessing the success of the brothers in spreading the Gospel, Pope Adrian II sanctioned their mission and approved the use of the Slavonic language in the Holy Liturgy. Cyril is credited with translating Holy Scripture into the Slavic tongue, and the Cyrillic alphabet generally attributed to him is more likely the outcome of his work on the Golgolithic alphabet, upon which the current Cyrillic alphabet is based.

Saints Cyril and Methodius are honoured by the Church's official title, Equals to the Apostles. In 1880 Pope Leo XIII extended the veneration of Cyril and Methodius to the entire Catholic Church. In 1980 Pope St John Paul II, himself of Slavic descent, proclaimed Cyril and Methodius 'Co-patrons of Europe'.

FROM TODAY'S GOSPEL – MATTHEW 5: 17-37

The first part of the Sermon on the Mount after the Beatitudes, compares and contrasts the virtue expected of the Christian community over and against that of the Pharisees and Scribes. This comparison is shown in six antitheses in chapter 5 (four this week and two next week), where the Law is looked at on the deeper level of motive.

By way of introduction, Matthew makes it clear that Jesus has not come to change the Law but to fulfil it. This means attending to the motive and not just obeying the Law blindly.

First of all, the Law says that you must not kill but, mindful that a major motive behind the taking of another's life is anger, Jesus forbids anger also and commends continual reconciliation.

Regarding the question of adultery, again an offence or the Law, the whole motive or lustful sexual desire or thought is considered in the same light.

On the question of divorce, the Law said that it was allowable with a writ of dismissal, but now there is no divorce allowed except for adultery. (It is a clause which the Church does not consider to be the words of Jesus but an exception in Matthew's Jewish-Christian community, following the strict interpretation of the Law at that time).

Finally, not only must you keep your oath but it is better also not to swear oaths in the first place. As followers of Christ it should be enough to say 'Yes' or 'No' and keep your word.
